Mrs. E. Pycholding Toasket containing the purse said .- "Mr. Brenan--I have much pleasure in presenting you, in the name of the ladies of Amoy, with this purse. May the fortune which has attended you on this occasion follow you through life. I congratulate you on this victory." In toply Mr. Brenan anid-"I am much obliged to you and to all the indies of Amoy for the magnificent puese you have just presented me with. It is a great pleasure to win it in Amoy where I have so many friends, and being the first I have ever won, it an addional pleasure to receive it from the fair hands of Mrs. Pye." The lucky winner was then evercome and was carried away in a thrilling and excited frame of mind amidst deafening cheers to the Club bar where restoratives were freely administered.

ASIATIC VINES AND THE PHYL-

A well-known arboriculturist, M. Alphonse Lavalles, treasurer of the Societé Centrale d'Horticulture de France, publishes in L'Agri. culture the results of an attempt made by him to banish the terrible phyllotera out of the vineyards. In his immense plantation and treepursery at Segré. M. Lavallés has cultivated for some years a number of Asiatic vines, and these have been always steadily and, as he thinks, purposely, avoided by the insect. Although the atter has been conveyed to other vines in their neighbourhood, it has refused to forsake the occidental vine for the criental. M. Lavallee has sent specimens of these Asiatic vines to various persons and societies eccupied with the campaign against the phylloxers; but in almost all cases they have refused to have anything to do with themon account of the unprepossessing appearance of the twining oriental grape-vine, which some described as too exuberant and soneysuckle-like. On the other hand, Madame Ponset, the owner. of the great vikeyards of the Laude de Pomerol, accepted his presents and conusels; she methodically followed out the latter. She planted three species of Aciatic vines -the ampelopsis aconitifolia of Northern China, and the vitis peterophylia and vitis inconstant of Japan-in the immediate neighbourhood of plants peopled with the insect. Whilst the devastations of the phyllozers went on all around, the three Asiatic immigrants throve prosperously and were externally unaffected. Madame Ponset, according to her adviser's counsel, next had the roots probed by three expects, all of whom reported that the vines were perfectly sound and free from the suspicious knotty swelling which is a symptom of the presence and operations of the phylloxers. M. Lavallée now proposes to graft the various French vines upon Chinese and Japanese roote,

Hannah More says that there is one single fact that one may oppose to all the wit and argument of infidelity, and that is that no man ever repented of Christianity on his death-hed. Drilling her class in poetry, a teacher quoted the familiar lines of Tennyson. "You must walk called early?" "Don't know," replied Tommy.

SPRATS OH!

Everybody who buys sprats has now at opportunity of exercising their ingenuity and powers of observations by picking out the young herrings from among the sprats, and the following are the principal tests :- First, the belly of the sprat is serrated or edged with-sharp-spines-feeling yery like the teeth of a very fine saw. Second, the dorsal or back fin of the sprat is placed, further back than in the herring. If the sprat be cut in two with a sharp knife drawn directly in in 1892. front of the dorsal fin and vertically to the ventral fins. When sprats are being cooked of oil, whereas when young herrings are being cooked the addition of butter, or lard, or best olive oil is necessary. The taste of l the sprat is far superior to that of the herring, the herring being dry compared with the sprat: To the poor of London and many. other large towns in England the supply of sprats is of the greatest importance. Their chemical composition is such that by means of the phosphoric seid which they contain -they contribute largely to the nervous as well as the muscular power. Sprats are sent down to London by fast trains, especially from Inverness, the journey occupying less so many sprats come from the North that the Thames-caught are handicapped out of the market; in cases of this kind aprats are
